Section 2: Read the following passages and do the tasks follow:

Passage 1: Read the following text and select the best answer A, B, C or D for each question after the text

Do you intend to study at American University? It takes a long time to get accepted at most American schools, perhaps as much as a year. That's why you should start choosing a school as soon as possible. It's also a good idea to apply to several different institutions, so that you'll have a better chance of acceptance at once. You should start looking for information now, because the more information you have about each college, the better choice you can make.

There are two good ways to get information you need. One is a general reference book, called Guide to American Colleges and Universities. The other good source of information is the catalogue published by each school.

You can study the general guide in almost any American library. This book has many useful statistics, such as the number of students, the average test scores for people accepted to the school, the number of books in the library, and the number of faculty members. You can also find the address of each school in this book.

Although the general guidebook has helpful information, some of the facts may be out-of-date. For instance, many schools raise their tuition every year. Since you'll need to know what your education will cost, out-of-date information will not be good enough. Also schools sometimes change their requirements for entrance. To be sure that you are getting current information, write to the university and ask for its catalogue. The catalogue not only has more detailed information. For instance, the catalogue can tell you if there is a special foreign student advisor, what kind of courses are offered, and what kind of housing is available. Some universities have dormitories, but at others you have to find your own place to live.

With all of this information, you should be able to pick out several good schools.

1. What was the main topic of this talk?
 - A. different kinds of American universities.
 - B. sources of information about US universities.
 - C. the difference between colleges and universities.
 - D. how to get accepted at a University.
2. What can you find in a general guide to Universities?
 - A. statistics about the American economy.
 - B. definitions of current slang expressions.
 - C. addresses of the schools.
 - D. current information.
3. According to the speaker, what is one reason you should write for a catalogue?
 - A. Catalogues give the names of the faculty members.
 - B. There are too many details in the guidebook.
 - C. Information in catalogues is current.
 - D. Addresses are given for the dormitories.
4. What is tuition?
 - A. textbooks
 - B. students and faculty
 - C. processing of applicants for entrance
 - D. payment for classes
5. What does the word "housing" mean?
 - A. the building where classes are held.
 - B. cafeterias
 - C. the building where the students live
 - D. transportation facilities

Passage 3

Drug advisory committees report to the Ministry of Health. It is the responsibility of these committees to protect consumers, most of whom have little chemical or biological knowledge with which to evaluate medications. Drug advisory committees provide the Ministry of Health with the necessary information for evaluating the proper degree of access to medications by the consumer. Drug advisory committees also oversee the preparation of materials that provide clearly explained information about commonly available drugs in a manner that is readily understandable to the layperson. Drug education may take the form of literature, advertisements, training of health care personnel, or other means as deemed appropriate by each committee. Drug advisory committees should be composed of physicians, registered nurses, epidemiologists, and pharmacologists. Members must possess specific scientific expertise and must have considerable experience working with consumers so that they can assess the impact of their decisions and projects on consumers. Each committee must have 10 – 15 members, who will be evaluated every two years by officials from the Ministry of Health.

1. What is the duty of these committees?

2. What is the Ministry of Health provided by these committees?

3. What must members of these committees have in order to assess the impact of their decisions and projects on consumers?

4. How many people must be included in each committee?

5. Who will evaluate the members every two years?

I became more and more depressed by the idea (3) I was stuck in the job. I (4) jealous of the students at the local university, who looked happy, carefree and full of hope, and part of something that I wanted to explore further.

However, now that I've actually become a (5) I find it (6) to mix with younger colleagues. They are always mistaking me for a lecturer and (7) me questions I can't answer. I also feel (8) from the lecturers because, although we are the same age, I know so much less than them. But I am glad of this opportunity to study because I know you need a qualification to get a rewarding job, which is (9) important to me. (10) most eighteen-year-olds, I much prefer a weekend with my books to one out partying. Then there are the normal student benefits of long holidays and theatre and cinema discounts. I often have doubts about what I'll do after university, but I hope that continuing my education at this late date has been a wise choice.
